About the Contributors

David CHNG was Research Fellow of the School of Humanities, Arts, & Social Sciences, the Nanyang University of Technology. Among his numerous works there are 《新呷华人史新考》 (1990), 《史叻峨嘈五虎祠义士新义》 (1996), 《马六甲新加坡华文碑文辑录》 (1998), 《新甲华人史史料考释》 (2007) and 《基督教传教士与近现代汉语新词》 (2010).

Email: DAVID.CHNG@e.ntu.edu.sg

HONG Lysa was formerly with the History Department, National University of Singapore. She is co-author of 《The Scripting of a National History: Singapore and its Pasts》 (2008), editor (with Tan Jing Quee and Tan Kok Chiang) of 《The May 13 Generation: The Chinese Middle Schools Student Movement and Singapore Politics in the 1950s》 (2011), and translator (with Tan Jing Quee and Loh Miaw Gong) of He Jin’s novel 《Ju Lang》 (2004) into 《The Mighty Wave》 (2011). She is also a founder-member of the e-journal spores: new directions in Singapore studies [www.s-pores.com]

Email: honglysa@gmail.com

HUANG Jianli is Associate Professor with the History Department of the National University of Singapore. Within the university, he is concurrently the Deputy Director of Asia Research Institute and Research Associate at the East Asian Institute. His first field of study is on the history of student political activism and local governance in Republican China from the 1910s to 1940s. His second research area is on the Chinese diaspora, especially the relationship between China and the Chinese community in Singapore. He has a monograph on 《The Politics of Depoliticization in Republican China》 (1996) (Chinese edition 2010) and co-authored (with Hong Lysa) 《The Scripting of a National History: Singapore and Its Past》 (2008). He also has published papers in a broad range of international-refereed journals.

Email: hishjl@nus.edu.sg

HUE Guan Thye teaches the History of Singapore and Malaysian Chinese in the School of Humanities of Social Sciences, Nanyang University of Singapore. He is also embarking on a field research project entitled “Mapping Religious Sites of Singapore” under the direction of McGill University Professor Kenneth Dean. His revised doctoral dissertation, entitled 《Yange Yu Moshi: Xinjiapo Daojiao He Fojiao Chuanbo Yanjiu》 沿革與模式: 新加坡道教和佛教傳播研究 [Evolution and Model: The Propagation of Taoism and Buddhism in Singapore] has been accepted for publication in 2013 (Singapore: Department of Chinese Studies, National University of Singapore & Global Publishing Co. Inc.)

Email: guanthyehue@gmail.com

KWEE Hui Kian is associate professor of history at the University of Toronto. Her research focuses on Southeast Asia and South China, where she has examined various themes relating to colonialism, political economy and diasporic entrepreneurship, from the seventeenth century to the present.

Email: huikian.kwee@utoronto.ca

Ernest KOH is Senior Lecturer in the History Department, School of Philosophical, Historical, and International Studies, Monash University.

Email: Ernest.Koh@monash.edu.au
LIM Choon Bee 林春美 is currently Associate Professor at the Department of Foreign Languages, Faculty of Modern Languages and Communication, University Putra Malaysia. Her areas of research include modern Chinese literature and Mahua literature. She is the author of Xingbie yu Bentu: Zaidi de Mahua Wenxue Lunshu [Gender and Nativeness: A Localist Discourse on Mahua Literature] (2009).

Email address: lcee@fbsp.upm.edu.my

Jason LIM 林捷胜 is Lecturer in Asian History at the School of History and Politics in the University of Wollongong, Australia. He graduated with a PhD from the University of Western Australia in 2007. He worked in the National Archives of Singapore as a researcher and oral history interviewer before joining the Department of History at the National University of Singapore as a Postdoctoral Fellow in 2008. He joined the University of Wollongong in 2010 and his research interests are on modern Chinese history and overseas Chinese links with China in the 20th century.

Email: jlim@uow.edu.au

Claudine SALMON 蘇爾夢 is emeritus director of research at the French National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS), Paris. An eminent scholar of the Chinese in Southeast Asia, especially in Indonesia, she has published prolifically on their history. She has also played an important part in projects designed to collect, reproduce and published important epigraphic and other primary historical sources relating to the Southeast Asian Chinese.

Email: claudine.salmon@ehess.fr

SHEN Lingxie 沈令勰 was an undergraduate student at the National University of Singapore, where she conducted an independent research project on Sanjiang Chinese migrants in Singapore.

Email: lingxieshen@gmail.com

THUM Ping Tjin 覃炳鑫 is a postdoctoral research fellow at the Asia Research Institute, National University of Singapore, and co-ordinator of Project Southeast Asia, University of Oxford. His research interests focus on decolonisation and its continuing impact on political culture and policy formation in Southeast Asia.

Email: aritpt@nus.edu.sg

WONG Yeetuan 黃裕端 is a Fellow in Penang Institute. He received his doctorate in history from the ANU. His main research interest is in the area of the Chinese business history of Southeast Asia, particularly Penang. Recent publications include Khean Guan Insurance Company and Penang's Big Five Families, 1885-1991 (Asian Culture No.33, 2009); More than a Tea Planter: John Archibald Russell and His Businesses in Malaya, 1899-1933 (JMBRAS Vol.83, Part 1, June 2010).

Email: yeetuanwong@yahoo.com.au